Constitution Day

Written by: Stephanie Westfall, Heather Brewer, Briana Hooley & Steven Robinson

President Harry Truman renamed 'I am an American Day' to Constitution Day in 1952. The Constitution was signed on the date Sept. 17th, 1787, and so Truman declared Sept. 17th as Constitution Day. "Constitution Week" is where the people of this land would recognize their freedoms. Constitution Day, Sept. 17th, is where people celebrate and honor the freedoms that everybody here in America shares.
