“Once Upon A Dream”

Written by: Kasey Sosby

This past weekend was a closing to the end of the school year for most students who attended the prom. The junior class decorated and organized the prom extremely well for an awesome outcome. During grand march, Mr. Roush announced Prom Prince Danny Roberts and Prom Princess Jessica Garren, along with Prom King Scott Stevens and Prom Queen Mary McFarland. The dance was a great way for seniors to spend time together one last time before graduation. Following prom, there was an after-prom held at the YMCA which was a true success with numerous people attending. Everyone can honestly say their dreams did come true at the end of the night!

Senior Spotlight #2

Our other senior for the senior spotlight this week is Tyler Osterloh. He was born in Hillsboro. He is the son of John Osterloh and Cindy Nicely. His favorite color is Behm's favorite color (whatever that is), and his favorite restaurant is BWs. Tyler does not have any plans after high school at this time, but eventually he would like to move South and start his own business.

Education In Action

When Mrs. Janse van Rensburg received a letter in Spanish from a soldier, her Spanish 3 kids immediately set about translating it. Then they all wrote a letter, in Spanish, to Pedro Arroyo, a Puerto Rican fighting in the army. Heather Brewer, Briana Hooley and Katy Wickline work on their section of the translation. Abolishing The Penny?

Written by: Current Events Class

The idea of abolishing the penny from circulation has been a matter of debate for many years. Advocates of the idea argue the penny is burdensome and that we could easily round our figures off to the nearest nickel. Other Americans argue the penny is the foundation of our money system and is necessary to accurately account wealth, profit, and debt. A recent Harris Survey of 2,513 adults revealed that 56% oppose abolishing the penny, 24% are in favor, and 20% are not sure.
